D. L. Paisley Successor To Caples As Hospital Steward

Caples Resigns Post Following Secret Session

Gives Up Position "For Good of Institution," He Announces.

PAISLEY APPOINTED

Well Known Educator of This City To Assume Duties Soon.

Following the resignation of Charles E. Caples, steward of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases, Dr. L. R. Brown, superintendent of that institution appointed D. L. Paisley of this city who has been superintendent of the Hope schools for the past twelve years, to succeed Mr. Caples.

LITTLE ROCK, March 4.—Resignation of Charles E. Caples, steward of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases for the past nine years, announced last night following a three-hour executive session of the Board of Trustees of that institution at the capital yesterday afternoon, apparently ended the board's investigation of the handling of hospital funds and the purchase of supplies.

E. D. Chipman, state purchasing agent for the past seven years, who, with Mr. Caples and Dr. L. R. Brown, superintendent of the hospital, was criticized by the Grand Jury last week, resigned Saturday.

Paisley Named

Dr. Brown announced last night that he had appointed D. L. Paisley, former superintendent of schools at Hope, to succeed Mr. Caples. It was said that Mr. Paisley will come to Little Rock within the next few days to assume his duties.

Mr. Paisley has been superintendent of schools at Hope for the past 12 years and is serving his 13th year as secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Arkansas Education Association.

He was superintendent of schools in North Little Rock for seven years and served in a similar capacity at Conway six years. He also was connected with the Warren Training School four years and served as county examiner in Jackson county for 10 years.

The board meeting was called by Dr. Robert Caldwell, chairman, at the request of Governor Farnell. The meeting was held in the governor's reception room and continued from 3:30 until 6:30.

Governor Farnell did not appear before the board, but had placed in the hands of each member when it convened a statement urging that it investigate the Grand Jury's criticisms thoroughly and remove any person found "guilty of dishonesty or willful neglect of duty."

Governor's Statement

The governor's statement follows: "I am meeting to consider the report of the Pulaski county Grand Jury, which last week criticized the method of purchasing supplies and handling funds by certain persons connected with the Hospital for Nervous Diseases.

"The law fixes responsibility on you for the proper management of that institution. When criticism is offered against any of its employees from attendant to superintendent, it is your duty to see that it is corrected."

Hotel Thief Held In Little Rock

May Be Implicated In Murder of T. R. Austin at Hot Springs.

LITTLE ROCK, March 4.—(AP)—Police expressed the opinion today that possibly Carl A. Ashton, alias Willie Hollett, held here in connection with hotel thefts, might have been implicated in the murder of T. R. Austin, wealthy Texas cattleman, in a Hot Springs hotel several months ago, and which is now being investigated by authorities.

Ashton is held by the Grand Jury charged with grand larceny resulting from several hotel thefts here. Major Pitcock, an officer, today said he had received information that Ashton's real name was Howerton, a former convict and at one time a member of a notorious gang of hotel followers.

Cement Plant To Be Enlarged Soon

Additional Machinery To Be Installed At Okay Plant.

P. C. Van Zandt, chief engineer for the Arkansas Portland Cement company, today announced that his company will soon begin the installation of additional machinery at their big cement plant at Okay to increase the capacity of the plant.

A filter will be added to the large rotary kiln, this new addition enabling the increasing of the capacity of the plant 750 barrels daily and giving the plant a daily capacity of 2,750 barrels. This addition will add to the big kiln to such an extent that the additional material may be burned without additional fuel expense.

Another finish, or grinding mill will also be installed, doubling the present grinding capacity of the plant.

Since the operations have begun at the plant it has been found that a considerable quantity of yellow clay is contained in the company's quarries, and a wash mill will be another improvement at the plant, this mill to be used to put the clay in proper condition for use in the making of cement.

Mr. Van Zandt stated that the work will be started in about 30 days and the installations will be completed within four months.

Mr. Van Zandt made this announcement following the visit of C. Boettcher of Denver, Colo., the president of the company, and M. O. Matthews of Ada, Okla., treasurer and general manager of the Arkansas Portland Cement company, a subsidiary of the Ideal Cement company.

Stoneburn Invited Here To Speak On Poultry Day, 8th

Memphis Authority Expected To Head County Program Saturday.

DISPLAY BEST PENS

Fancy Chickens Will Be Shown in Downtown Windows.

Plans are going forward to make County Poultry day, Saturday, March 8, one of the biggest agricultural celebrations in the history of Hempstead county.

An invitation has been extended by the County Poultry association to Prof. Frederick H. Stoneburn, of Memphis, well known Southern poultry authority, to speak Saturday afternoon at Hope city hall. This will be the principal indoor meeting of the day.

Assurances have been received from more than 20 local business houses and banks that their display windows will be available for poultry exhibits. Fancy pens will be set up downtown Friday night, and by Saturday Hope is expected to be "poultry-conscious."

The 4-H clubs are co-operating with the County Poultry association in making the day a success. The idea behind Poultry day, according to the committees in charge, is to stimulate interest in poultry production and to call attention to the food values of poultry products.

Hempstead county is regarded as an immense poultry country, having at least 16 certified flocks; and poultry is being pushed just as vigorously as dairying and other branches of the new, diversified farming.

Settings of pure-bred eggs are to be given away Saturday as premiums. The poultry association has announced.

O'Neal Enlarges His Machine Shop

Forge Room Added, To Double Capacity of Local Plant.

Completion of a new addition to the Arkansas Machine & Specialty Co. plant here, including a new forge shop for general contractors, was announced yesterday by E. P. O'Neal, proprietor.

The capacity of the plant is doubled by the new extension, which makes Mr. O'Neal's shops among the largest and most complete in the entire state. His business contracts extend all over this section and into Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Machine tools are being moved into the new addition, to make room for strictly automotive business in the original section of the plant.

Hoover Completes First Year In President's Office; Initiates Many New Projects; Faces Serious Problems

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Hoover completes a first year in office that rarely has been equalled for the number of new projects initiated, both domestic and foreign, but the end of the year finds him in the midst of several knotty problems in the handling of which may depend, ultimately, the success of his administration.

Three major problems—naval disarmament in the foreign field and the tariff and prohibition in the domestic field—have reached a critical stage just as the year comes to an end. All three of these are in the field of politics, and the two domestic issues are just as certain to be campaign issues three years hence when the country goes to the polls in a Presidential election as they will be in the congressional elections this fall.

Because of their nature, they more or less submerge those other projects of the first year, in which may be seen the hand of Hoover the engineer rather than Hoover the chief figure in the national political arena. These others are matters lying in the domain of the social and economic—oil conservation, preservation of public land, inland waterways, the Nicaragua canal, child health, social welfare problems with which Mr. Hoover is most closely identified in the public mind.

Red Riot Broken Up By Police

Turbulent scenes as police scattered 200 Communist agitators with blackjacks, kicks and fists outside the New York city hall are pictured above. At the top you see one of the rioters fleeing before a policeman's swinging club. Below a youthful Red, his head cut by a blow, is shown being borne away by fellow Communists. The disorder was an "unemployment demonstration" similar to those held recently in other American cities.

J. H. Barrow Buys Loreco Franchise

Local Wholesale Office Taken Over by Ozan Business Man.

Purchase of the Loreco wholesale oil and gas franchise for the Hope territory was completed today by J. H. Barrow, well known business man of Ozan, this county.

The transfer from P. A. Lewis, former owner, was made today and Mr. Barrow was checked in as the new owner by the Louisiana Oil Refining company, of Shreveport.

Loreco property here consists of a wholesale distributing station and office, located on the Frisco tracks just beyond the city limits on the Washington highway. The company has many local retail outlets among the service station operators of Hope, and is one of the major oil and gasoline distributors in Hempstead county.

Mr. Barrow will occupy the office on the Washington road, but will continue to maintain his home at Ozan, where he has lived for many years.

Another paradox is that although brevity is the soul of wit, Senators are funny.

Undercover Man Reported Nabbed

Alleged Agent Used In Hope Raid, Arrested in Howard County.

Arrest of the undercover man alleged to have been used here by prohibition authorities in their recent wholesale raid, on a whiskey charge in Howard county, was reported yesterday from Mineral Springs.

Jerry Fletcher, said to have been the federal undercover man, and his brother, Ocie Fincher, were reported arrested at Saratoga by officers from Mineral Springs, last Saturday. When arraigned before Mayor R. H. Hallmark at Mineral Springs, Ocie Fincher pleaded guilty to transporting and was fined $100 and costs.

His brother, Jerry, said to have been the undercover man, pleaded not guilty and was released under bond of $500 pending trial. Ocie is said to have pleaded that the whiskey belonged to himself, and that Jerry didn't know it was in the car in which both brothers were traveling.

A daily average of 25 persons travel between Seattle and San Francisco, 549 miles, by airplane.

Willie Walker Is Indicted, To Be Tried for Murder

Held In Connection With Strange Murder of Mrs. Lena Walsh.

NOT GUILTY IS PLEA

Defense Attorneys Would Prove Body Not That of Mrs. Walsh.

HARRISBURG, March 4.—(AP)—Indictment of Willie Walker, aged 32, for the murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Lena Walsh Campbell, Walsh was announced today by the Poinsett County Grand Jury. Walker pleaded not guilty, and a trial was set for next Monday.

Mrs. Walsh's body was found near Marked Tree, Ark., and was not identified until several weeks later.

Walker was arrested in Phoenix, Ariz., and brought back here charged with the murder. Mrs. Walsh's bullet riddled body was found by different parties the first as being Mrs. Clutch of Memphis, but later Mrs. Clutch was found in Blue Diamond, Ky. A theory involving Chicago gang lands was advanced by police, and the underworld of several cities were searched for the slayer.

The body was later identified as the wife of Arthur Baxter, of Jonesboro, and he was charged with the murder. J. M. Lewis of Clarkesboro was also charged with murder in connection with the strange case. Both men were dismissed after the identification was exploded.

Defense attorneys said today they would prove the body was not that of Mrs. Walsh although it was buried by family members.

Body of Elliott Found in River Bottoms Near Balby Springs

JURY IS SUMMONED

Bottoms Searched to Obtain Evidence For Presentation

TEXARKANA, Ark., March 4.—(AP)—One man who was formerly charged with murder and four others are being held in jail here today while Bowie county officers were searching the river bottoms for clues in connection with the slaying of Lloyd Elliott, 22, a farmer whose body was found late yesterday in the river bottoms near here.

Dave Goodwin, aged 40 was charged for the murder by prosecuting attorney R. G. Waters. Those held in jail with him are: two brothers, George Goodwin, 53, Collie Goodwin, 24, and Dave's father and mother.

An investigation into the slaying will be started tomorrow by a special Grand Jury with George W. Johnson as summoned to sit at that time.

In an effort to obtain evidence for presentation, the Grand Jury, prosecuting attorney the Sheriff of Bowie county, all went to Balby Springs today, near the spot where Elliott is believed to have been slain.

TEXARKANA, Tex., March 4.—Finding of the body ended a search in which more than 300 possemen engaged. Officers from all sections of the county were present and nearly 300 citizens left their businesses to aid in the hunt.

Elliott had been shot through the back of the head and through the heart. Officers were unable to determine whether the shot through the heart had penetrated through the back or front of the body or whether a shotgun or rifle was the murder weapon.

More marks were found on the slain youth's neck, indicating that he had been dragged through the underbrush from the place where the killing took place to the river, a distance of a quarter of a mile.

The body was discovered when W. J. Tucker, one of the searchers, discerned a pair of boots protruding from the water at the river's edge. The boy's head and shoulders were imbedded in the mud, indicating that the body had been buried into the stream from the bank.

Two pairs of tracks that led to and from the river were discovered and officers attempted to follow them but lost the trail. Possemen spread out over a wide area and within a short time found the place where the killing had taken place.

A quantity of leaves and brush had been piled over the blood soaked ground at the murder scene. The place where the killing took place was in a thicket about 200 yards from the homes of Collie Goodwin and his son Dave.

Local Hospital In 5th Birthday

Also, Building Plans Are To Be Discussed by City Tonight.

Julia Chester Hospital is celebrating its fifth anniversary today, with a birthday party in the hospital rooms at Second and Walnut.

Many gifts were received during the morning, congratulating the hospital on its birthday. Ike Rehphan, of the New York Stores, furnished ice cream for the hospital hosts and their guests this afternoon.

The party comes in an auspicious moment, when the Hope and Hempstead County Hospital association, operating company for the Julia Chester institution, is planning a building program which should give Hope one of the finest small municipal hospitals in Arkansas.

Since time ago a special committee from the hospital association was appointed to meet with a committee of aldermen to work out a financing program for a city and county hospital. The report of this committee is expected when the city council meets tonight in its semi-monthly session.

Dr. E. Cannon, owner of Josephine Hospital, Main and Third streets, will also be present at tonight's meeting and will probably present a consolidated proposal for a city general hospital.

The Dramas of Every-Day

THE poignant little dramas and tragedies of every-day life that go on all about us seldom come to our attention. Most of the time we never even know about them; but once in a while one pops to the surface—and if we look at it closely we get wisdom, because we get a better understanding of some of the things that less fortunate people are up against.

The other day in Philadelphia a man sat out at day-break to look for work.

He had been out of work for a long time. His home was a wretched hole in a back alley. When he started out that morning he gave his wife 18 cents—two-thirds of his entire bankroll. If he did not find a job that day, his wife and their three little children would be in a pretty bad situation.

So he went looking for work, with nine cents in his pocket and a great dread in his heart. He couldn't find any place after place he tried only to be turned down each time. And at last he got to thinking: why not try a hold-up or a burglary? Other men do, and get away with it. Why not? Wouldn't that be better than seeing your family starve?

He thought and thought about it, and the longer he thought the stronger grew the attraction if this dark plan. When he saw a well-dressed man approaching he actually grew afraid that he would spring on him and take his money.

But he didn't want to be a criminal; so at last he went to a police station, explained things and asked to be locked up—so that he wouldn't commit a crime.

It is comforting to read that the policemen took care of him. They made up a little purse for him and sent him back to his family. A judge heard of the case and got a job for the man. So now the crisis is past. The sky is bright again.

But haven't you, just from reading that, a new sympathy for the chap who isn't as well off as you are?

That Troublesome Second Year

RODNEY DUTCHER, in analytical dispatch from Washington, points out that President Hoover, in his second year in the White House, faces a number of weighty problems, all of which will probably be quite effective in keeping him from supposing that the presidency is anything like a bed of roses.

To begin with, the London naval conference is not progressing as was hoped. It is quite possible that it will result in more ship building instead of less; and this will be especially disappointing because the public had such high hopes for real reduction when the conference opened.

The domestic situation, also, is vexing. The legislative jam in congress seems to improve not at all. The Old Guard Republicans, never overfriendly toward President Hoover, are growing cooler each day; and the western progressives, likewise, are drifting farther and farther away from him. The election of a wet Democrat in Calvin Coolidge's home district does not augur well for the coming congressional elections, either.

On top of these things, there is the controversy which Secretary of the Interior Wilbur has aroused by his attitude toward the disposal of power generated at Boulder Dam; and the fight over the Hughes nomination indicates that no presidential appointment can hope to escape sharp criticism in the Senate.

These things are enough to convince anyone that President Hoover is not going to have any easy time of it during the next 12 months.

Yet, after all, it is quite possible that the difficulties of the situation have been exaggerated.

President Hoover went into office with the good-will of a great majority of the American people. There is nothing to indicate that he has lost any appreciable amount of this good will. Nothing that has yet happened is any sign that he will have very much trouble if he seeks re-election in 1932. His honesty, his sincerity and his ability have gone unquestioned. He faces a troublesome year, but that is the fate of all presidents.

Dodging Work

BIG business is coming to discover that a lot of the old copy-book maxims are unsound.

Here, for instance, is a word from Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times:

"I must confess that my system rests on the self-arrangement of 'Never do anything yourself that you can get someone else to do for you.'"

This reverses the old adage about doing things yourself if you want them well done. But it is excellent advice, just the same. No executive can do his best work if he does not entrust the petty details of the job to his subordinates.

WASHINGTON — Regular Republicans in the Senate, especially the once powerful faction known as the Old Guard, are willing to agree with President Hoover and leaders in the House that the Senate has been moving too slowly and that legislative affairs are in a terrible mess.

The present seems to them very black indeed and the only bright aspect of the future lies in the fact that the tariff battle cannot go on forever. When President Hoover had some of them to breakfast to talk over the possibilities of speed-up, as demanded by House Floor Leader Tamm, they told him sadly but bluntly that he had better keep his shirt on because any executive interference would only make things worse.

Sees "Needless Delay"

The almost general disappointment of the regular Republicans with the result of the special and regular sessions in the Hoover administration's first year is expressed by Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, whose position is similar to that of other Old Guardsmen such as Smoot of Utah, Reed and Grundy of Pennsylvania, Fess of Ohio and Gillett of Massachusetts.

"The action of the coalition of Democrats and western Republicans has caused serious and needless legislative delay as well as business uncertainty," Bingham says. "They are tearing down their own campaign of 1928 when they went almost as far for protection as the Republicans, after condemning the Fordney-McCumber tariff act in 1924.

"The business world had every reason to believe that neither party would attack the existing schedules, but the coalition has gone and lowered them in many cases and it won't listen to the case of the northeastern industrial states at all.

"I am perfectly amazed at the Democrats' reversal of their presidential campaign attitude, even though they are back to their historic position. I guess they feel that whatever they do they can't be any worse off and their votes in the past few months will discourage any manufacturers from ever again looking to them for protection.

"This group of western Republicans in the coalition has been trying its best to preach sectionalism and to preach to its constituents that the east is opposed to their interests. But the eastern senators have shown much more willingness to vote for protection of farm products than western senators have for the protection of eastern industries. The totally uncompromising attitude of some western senators has been in utter opposition to party tenets and the best interests of Republicanism.

"It has been extremely unpleasant to notice that Republican members of the coalition are unwilling to listen even to the arguments citing unemployment in New England and the bad straits in which some of our factories find themselves.

"They have just yoted blindly against any increases which would help the manufacturers of the northeastern states."

Menu For the Family

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

THE hostess who entertains during Lent should make the most of the many delicious and unusual dishes made with fish. Fish salads, souffles, scallops and creamed dishes are acceptable for formal luncheons or informal suppers. They are sure to please and are a delightful change from the heavier fare of winter months.

Shrimp Jambolaya is a Creole dish, delicious and intriguing. Many of the most popular and expensive restaurants and tea rooms in the largest cities specialize in dishes "a la Creole." There's a decided charm about Creole cookery that is undoubtedly dependent on the rare perfection of seasoning. However, any housekeeper, if she will learn some of the tricks of seasoning that are not "native" with her, can add variety and unusual palatableness to her table.

The file powder so often used in Creole seasonings is finely powdered sassafras leaves. The powder imparts a peculiar pungency and flavor that is stimulating to the appetite.

Shrimp Jambolaya

One and one-half cups boiled shrimps, 2 medium sized white onions, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 3 tomatoes, 1-2 cup well washed rice, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, half a clove of garlic, 1 bay leaf, 1 teaspoon file powder, 4 cups boiling water.

Fresh or canned shrimp can be used, but be sure the tiny dark vein through the center is removed. Melt butter in sauce pan, add onions peeled and minced, and let cook slowly until a golden straw color. Sift over flour and stir until thoroughly blended. Stir in cook until four colors slightly. Sauté tomatoes, plunge into water and slip off skins. Coarsely and add to mixture. 2 cups canned tomatoes can be substituted for fresh ones. Add parsley, garlic, bay leaf, file powder, and boiling water.

Let cook slowly about an hour until the rice is tender and mixture is thickened. Add shrimp and heat thoroughly. Season with salt and pepper and serve.

Advertising Gains 21% In February!

Paid advertising in the Hope Star showed an increase in February of twenty-one per cent over the same month one year ago. This was the first full month that a comparative showing could be made since the first issue of the consolidated newspaper appeared on January 18th, 1929.

Almost every month has seen an increase in the number of local and of national advertisers who use the columns of the Hope Star. There are now more advertisers represented in this newspaper than ever before in its history.

Two definite indications of the manner in which the Hope Star is received. In the long run, the greater the results a newspaper can obtain for its advertisers, the more rapidly will its advertising volume expand. The Hope Star is getting results for its advertisers.

The paid circulation exceeds the total net paid of any daily newspaper in the history of Hempstead county. This circulation is concentrated in the consumer trading area of Hope, as outlined in the Market Data Handbook of the U. S. Department of Commerce. Every effort is being made to increase this list through natural and unforced means.

Since advertising results depend as much or more on the reader-interest of the newspaper, this feature of advertising value is not overlooked. There are almost daily reminders of the manner in which people in the surrounding trade territory like to read the Hope Star. The tremendous sum of money spent every month to win this reader-interest has not been in vain. And when the advertising volume increases sufficiently, the expenditure to make the Hope Star even more interesting and entertaining to its readers will be made.

7. A commission to investigate conditions in Haiti and to recommend a permanent policy there.

These are but a few of them. Despite attacks by democrats that the commission is merely a means of "burying" a problem, the President has announced that he intends to appoint many more.

Brilliant Start

The Hoover administration, swept into office by an overwhelming majority after a bitter campaign, started brilliantly. It was not until after congress got into its work in the special session which the President called to deal with farm relief and the tariff that storm clouds appeared on the horizon.

Farm relief was the chief domestic problem when the administration began. At the outset, this was in the background, and domestic issues gave way temporarily to international issues.

During the inaugural ceremonies on March 4, alarming dispatches began to file into the state department about a brewing revolution in Mexico. The President acted quickly to place an embargo on arms, backing the established regime against the revolutionaries, who soon were driven into the north of Mexico and the rebellion broken. Peace was restored and relations with Mexico are established now on a more friendly basis than in years.

It was not long before the President carried out the pledge in his inaugural address to seek further limitation of naval armaments among the great powers. One bold stroke followed another, culminating in the visit here last summer of Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, and the summoning of the conference now going on at London.

Early in his administration, the President took another step beyond naval limitation negotiations looking to preservation of peace among the nations. He promulgated the Kellogg anti-war pact, drafted during the previous administration and told the world that it must mean something.

Kellogg Pact
He demonstrated that he would take the leadership in seeing that it did mean something by invoking it to prevent war between China and Russia, both signatories of the pact, which was successful.

The President has sought in his year in office, likewise, to promote friendliness with the peoples of Latin America, following up the good-will mission he made to Central and South America after his election. He has withdrawn more marines from Nicaragua, one of the "sore spots" of the previous administration, and has announced his intention of ultimately withdrawing all marines from that country and from China, if conditions permit.

A short-lived resolution in Haiti recently caused the dispatch of additional marines there, but these were recalled immediately, and a commission appointed by the President, with the consent of congress, sailed from Key West last week to study means of bringing peace and order in that tropical island.

The end of the year finds the boldest of the President's international ventures, the attempt to further limit naval armaments, involved in difficulties, but with him and administration leaders hopeful that some definite results may come.

World Court Entry

Mr. Hoover has initiated another move for international cooperation, United States entry into the world court. He was one of the moving spirits in the mission of Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, who worked with League of Nations officials in revising the world court statutes to meet the Senate's reservations. Up on President Hoover's instructions the signature of the United States was affixed a few months ago to the revised protocol of entry. It still has to weather the Senate.

The remnant of the old "irreconcilable" group which fought United States entry into the League of Nations is ready to combat United States adherence to the world court, but is not expected to be successful. However, the President probably will not submit the revised protocol to the senate until next session.

With his move for reduction of naval armaments, Mr. Hoover coupled a move for reduction of military expenditures by this government. He appointed several months ago a commission of staff officers to seek means of retrenchment, but nothing yet has come of this.

Thus far, President Hoover has been more successful, perhaps, in the foreign field than he has in the domestic political field. His troubles with congress started when his farm relief program, which went easily through the House, got to the senate.

Rift in Republicans
Republican ranks broke there, many western republicans deserting the administration to support the export decontrol farm relief plan. The desertion was led by three of his ardent campaigners, Borah, Brookhart and

Nye. Support of democrats enabled these western republicans to insert the decontrol plan, but the House stood by the President and rejected the plan. Subsequently the measure was passed. The federal farm board which is set up now is facing its first real emergency in a wheat surplus.

Demonstrates Tact

As a President, Mr. Hoover has demonstrated in his first year in office an ability for quick and surprising strokes. One of these was his announcement that hereafter public hearings would be held in appeals for tax refunds when the amount involved exceeded $20,000. The Treasury had been criticized for secret hearing on big tax refund cases.

The difficulty the President has had with the Senate has extended to include appointments. In numbers of cases, the most notable being the nomination for Charles Evans Hughes to be chief justice, he has met opposition from that body. He has not taken Senate leaders into his confidence as closely as have some other Presidents in the matter of appointments, and this has caused some resentment.

He initiated a new system in appointments that has received much comment. Whenever he has made nominations to important posts, he has submitted to the public at the same time a list of those who endorsed his particular appointee. This extends responsibility to those who have supported the appointment.

Many New Uses For Old Household Standby

Women have long considered Parowax the ideal hair cream for making jelly, jams, and preserves. But practical housewives have now discovered many new uses for Parowax. On "Blue Monday," a stick of Parowax, shaved into the wash boiler, will help to take the dirt out of clothes. A teaspoonful of hot Parowax mixed with 1/2 pound of hot starch makes parts smoothness, luster, and shine, and prevents the iron from sticking. Parowax is splendid to use in cleaning fowl and game. Clip the wings and remove the coarse guard feathers, leaving the bird covered with a clean paint brush, coat the bird with Parowax. When cool and hard, simply pull off the Parowax and every feather lifts off. When putting away metal tools, knives, etc., which will not be used for some time, melt Parowax and cover the implements with a coating of it. This is a sure preventive of rust. Sold by all dealers. 1 lb. cartons four sticks—15c. Ada.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper form, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a LUCKY instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quick "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

SOME PEOPLE ROB THEMSELVES

Poor payment of bills costs the man who does not pay the most. He who takes on a $10 obligation, or a $10,000.00 obligation today, and who pays promptly when due, can enjoy the privileges of credit again and again. And his good name extends his credit, multiplies it, in fact. His emergency needs can always be taken care of, before they happen.

But the man who does not pay, the man who shackles himself by contracting obligations which he does not meet, weakens his self-respect, and kills his big chance when he needs it most.

Even for purely selfish reasons, pay up your old bills, get a good credit rating, and keep your credit good!

Prompt Pay Accounts Are WELCOME!

You can rest assured that your charge account is appreciated by the business and professional men of Hope who extend the courtesies and the convenience of a charge account. That is, provided you pay your bills promptly.

Many people took advantage of this service to work a hardship on these men, and a credit rating bureau was formed as the first work of the Hope Merchants Association. This is in self protection.

In case of emergency or distress, these business and professional men will sometimes extend the ordinary time limit for payment. But they are entitled to their money promptly, and are going to take the necessary steps to collect it, in the future. So pay your bills promptly when due.

Credit Rating Bureau Now In Operation

The Hope Credit Rating Bureau is now collecting information about your habits of paying your bills with Hope business and professional men. Each of the members have been asked to file a complete list of their charge account customers, along with their habits of paying their bills, and the amount outstanding on old bills past due.

As these old bills are paid up, there is some possibility of giving a better rating, if the customer is deserving. As your habits of paying bills becomes more prompt, all the members are advised.

Your credit rating is a matter of private information, available only to members of the Credit Rating Bureau. However, this organization will be affiliated with 1100 other similar bureaus throughout the nation. Thus, your rating will follow you, wherever you are, wherever you go, as long as you live.

Let's All Clean Up The Slate!

You will find that it is highly important that you make every possible effort to get a good credit rating now. This is a fair warning, in time for you to pay your old bills, before the rating cards have been completed. And before member firms have been advised of your delinquency. Many people who can pay promptly have merely been slow pay, thus working a distinct hardship upon those whom they owe money. Others have had unforeseen circumstances prevent prompt payment. But you can make some arrangements for immediate payment with your creditors. The bureau is starting now to collect some accounts from people who have removed to some other city. If that place has a credit rating bureau, the delinquent account will be followed up. Efforts will be made to collect it. Members will be asked not to extend him credit until investigation is made of the account, if it is not paid.

What Is Your Credit Rating?

Murder Backstairs

by ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "THE AVENGING PARROT" THE BLACK PIGEON, ETC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Almost from the time he arrives
at different homes of the millionaire BERKELEYS, for a week end, DETECTIVE DUNDIE feels promotions of denier. In the household are Mr. and Mrs.
Berkeley, Dick, tiny prodigal
Glorinda, engaged to Crosby Gigi, 15-year-old sister, Mrs.
Lambert, social secretary and a friend of Crosby's, WICKETT, butler, DORIS MATTHEWS, lady's maid, and EUGENE ARNOLD,
chauffeur, to whom Doris is engaged.

Dundie puzzles over several questions. Why is Glorinda marrying Crosby, when she is still in love with JOHN WAXWELL? Why did Glorinda steal out of the house after 11 o'clock? Why did Gigi snatch the crystal flask of French perfume, presented to her mother
by Crosby, and sprinkle all the guests with it? Did Doris do it—thieves, the maid, meet Dick Berkeley as he had forced her to agree to do it? If not, where was Dick?
And lastly, why were Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley quarrelling so violently in the library after 11?
Did Berkeley suspect all that Dundie suspected, concerning Crosby and his wife's death?
The next morning Gigi commands Dundie to join a surprise swimming party. The odor of perfume is strong about the lake. Gigi dies in Dick's arms with horror on her face. Dundie dives after her, then commands Glorinda to take Gigi to the house. He commands
Crosby to stay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VII

"MURDER!" Dundie Dundie replied curtly to Seymour Crosby's question, but he spoke in a low voice so that the dreadful word should not reach the ears of the two girls who were on their way to the house.

Gigi had held back at first, hysterically asserting her right to stay since she had already seen "it,"
but Glorinda had jerked her small sister roughly to her feet and had dragged her away. Oddly, Glorinda had not asked a single question. Now Gigi had broken into a blind, zigzag run, one hand pressed against her eyes which had seen a sight they would never forget.

"Murder?" Crosby repeated incredulously. "Who?"

"Please go to the summerhouse, Crosby, and wait for me there, but I warn you not to touch anything," Dundie instructed sternly, ignoring the older man's question, rather as if he thought Seymour Crosby already knew the answer, and there was no need to waste time or words.

An angry flush replaced the dead pallor of Crosby's cheeks, and he parted his lips to speak, then thought better of it and turned away, running toward the summerhouse in a jog trot.

Dundie stared after the running man with narrowed eyes, then,
taking a deep breath, he plunged into the lake again. Once more he came to the surface many feet
short of the spot where his dreadful work was to be done. "Treading water, he glanced toward the little summerhouse. Seymour

Crosby stood on the first of the three narrow steps leading down into the water, a trembling hand gazing at his eyes from the sun.

"A rather terrible form of third degree for him," Dundie said to himself, as he executed a surface dive that carried him to the spot directly in front of the summerhouse, where Gigi had discovered her "mermaid."

AFTER nearly a minute of frantic work under water, the young detective rose again, his agonized lungs demanding great draughts of air.

"Just a few seconds more down there, thank God!" Dundie called to Crosby, and dived again.

When he rose once more he was towing a burden by the hair—an inert burden which could offer no

hampering resistance, except that of weight, and now that he had done his gruesome work below
water, the weight Dundie towed was pitifully light.

"I'd rather not try to manage alone, Crosby!" Dundie called sternly. "I don't want to bruise
her. Kneel down on the bottom
step and lift her by the shoulders, please."

Seymour Crosby came out of his trance of horror sufficiently to kneel as commanded, and his white lips began to babble:

"Why, it's—Doris! Doris! I thought at first it was Letitia—
Mrs. Lambert—"

"Did you?" Dundie granted noncommittally. But he told himself that if Crosby's horrified astonishment was assumed, he was doing it rather well. . . . "That's right!
Not very heavy, is she, poor girl?"

Careful! Don't knock her head against the bench. . . .
Now!

And between them they laid the body of Doris Matthews, the lady's maid, upon the wide bench that encircled the round floor of the summerhouse. The pale-gold hair, which Dundie had admired the night before when he had seen it curling about the flushed, beautiful little face and knotted in a shining bun on the nape of the white neck, hung below the hard bench now in long, dripping strands, the color of wet sand. The slender body was clad in the plain black silk uniform she had been wearing when Dick Berkeley had forced her to meet him.

"Could it be—suicide?" Crosby stammered, his teeth chattering.

"If you had seen me untying that scarf to take out the rocks with which the body was weighted down, clumsily swabbed a section of the floor and of the bench. Very near the bench, to the left of the steps leading into the water, there was a faintly brownish stain, which the hasty swabbing had not been able entirely to obliterate. Blood!

He was about to rise when his eyes caught sight of something several feet away, on the floor against the three-foot wall, which formed a back for the circular bench. He was about to pick it up when he remembered the necessity for preserving fingerprints. He let it lie.

It was the big crystal stopper
from the perfume flask.

"Has there been an accident,
sir?" Wickett called, his voice quavering like an old man's.

"No, Wickett! Not an accident.
Murder!" Dundie answered with brutal directness, for there was no time now for sparing feelings. "I am going to telephone to the police, and I think you and Mr. Crosby had better remain where you are. By no means go into the summerhouse, and let no one else enter it until the police arrive. Have you spread the word that there's been an 'accident'?" he added, ignoring the butler's horrified quaverings.

"No, sir. I saw Miss Gigi and Miss Glorinda returning. They seemed upset, but Miss Glorinda
would not let Miss Gigi explain.
I—I thought one of you gentlemen
had been hurt, sir."

BUT before the butler had finished his explanation, Dundie was sprinting for his dressing gown,
discarding it, the springboard struggling into it, he cut across to the cement walk, which led directly from the summerhouse diagonally across the lawn to the driveway that curved about the back of the house.

His trained mind automatically made note of the fact that the murderer's feet, if the murderer had come from the Berkeley house,
need not have left the hard, unbetraying surface of cement, whether the exit from the house had been made by front door or rear. For the broad driveway completely encircled the house. But the short-cut route to the summerhouse was,
of course, from the rear door.

To his own knowledge, Glorinda
Berkeley had stolen out last night by the back door. And it was her noose, actually lathered with Batik scent with which the stone-weighted skirts of the maid had been tied!

But Dick Berkeley had also stolen out of the house, to keep a rendezvous with the girl who was now dead. And Dick Berkeley was missing, or had been missing as late as half an hour ago. Two suspects already.

The back door was not latched.
The detective entered and strode swiftly but quietly toward the butler's pantry, which had a telephone,
he knew. As he passed an open door on the opposite side of the hall he heard a flat, indignant female voice declaring:

"No, ma'am, she ain't in her room! Her bed ain't been slept in,
I tell you. Mrs. Ryan! A fine howdy-de-do, I must say, even if she is engaged! Staying out all night—I never did trust that uppity little English snip—"

The servants' sitting room. Probably the cook and a chambermaid mulling, with relish, what they thought was a nasty bit of back-stairs scandal.

Reaching the butler's pantry he heard, Dundie found the telephone and gave the number of police headquarters.

Amazed! Way Taniac Relieves "Rheumatism"

For years the remarkable results obtained from Taniac in the treatment of general rundown conditions have amazed its users, but most surprising of all is the quick relief this remarkable medicine gives in cases of "rheumatism" and stomach ills that yield to nothing else.

Men and women who thought themselves beyond human aid, who suffered for years with pains from stomach and bowel troubles, neuritis, chronic aches, dizziness, constipation, who saw themselves daily going down into a sickly state, who have thought the amazing stimulating and cleansing action of this REMEDY Taniac, found themselves once more in the possession of a strong healthy stomach and a body free from pain. One user says, "I suffered for years from muscular rheumatism. After taking Taniac for a couple of weeks
I was over the rheumatism, my kidneys

BILIOUS COLOR AND BAD TASTE

Black-Draught Proved Just the Medicine Needed, Says
North Carolina Lady.

Winston-Salem, N. C.—"I used to suffer from spells of constipation when my system would get all out of order," says Mrs. C. R.
Dunnagan, 422 Cleveland Avenue,
this city. "I would wake up in the morning dull and weary, and would not feel like doing my work."
"At times, I would have bilious headaches. My color would be a yellow paper. I would have a bad taste in my mouth."

"There was a girl staying with me at that time who kept after me to take Black-Draught. Finally, she gave me some that she had on hand. I found it to be the very thing for me. A few doses of the tea seemed to have cleaned out my system and made me feel fine."

"Since then, I have kept it in my house almost all the time. I've been using Black-Draught, whenever I need a laxative, for the last ten years, and I find that it answers the purpose. I have recommended Black-Draught to many

a good medicine."

Big Doings Are Just Ahead

SPRING has started her northward march along the banks of the Mississippi. Bobby Jones took out his clubs the other day after a winter of idleness, shot an 83, then got serious and shot an 80, then got very, very hot and went for a 79, and turned Calamity Jane loose on the lads.

The hosts of big league baseball have gone south to greet the sun on its return trip. The crack of bat and bat and that resounding "bang" as the leather sinks into the catcher's mitts, is one of the harbingers of box scores to come.

Big golf doings are still ahead in the south after which the Walker cup crowd will depart for the battles at Sandwich. It will be only a few weeks now until the major throws out the first ball and the teams start on the long grind. Lovely days are coming.

Here Comes Max

EARLY summer will bring important tussles among the heavyweights. The Hurlful Ham-burger, Mr. Max Schmelling, will be trying to take unto himself a world championship June 26 in New York. Maybe everything is going to be all right after all.

Soon the Notre Dame team will be taking its regular spring dose of bruises under Mr. Roekne's direction. There will be blocking and tackling and plenty of running, passing and kicking. Knute will be completely recovered his health down at Miami Beach. But this year he is going to let the seniors show the rookies how to block and tackle. He used to get out there and do it himself.

Tennis and Polo

There will be no time at all until the tennis people are out punting the ball and taking off the pounds. This year there are big doings in tennis to look forward to than ever before, with an open tournament in the card for the late summer. The chance of seeing Karel Kozeluh, the sizzling Czech, in action against the Almon-pures at last seems about to be realized.

Besides the international fight

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

TOM TURNER, president of the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League, is a swell practical joker. . . . He announced recently he had bought the Boston Red Sox. . . . The wires carried the story and pictures of Thomas were sent around. Now he says "the press boys were begging for a story and I treated 'em." . . . We may be wrong but we don't think Tom's idea of a story is so very wonderful. . . . Chick Hatley, bespectacled Card outfielder, has been keeping his arm in trim this winter throwing snowballs. . . . Out in the California mountains. . . . Chick wears glasses now on and off the field. . . . Chick drove from St. Louis to Berkeley, Calif., in four days. . . . It's a mere 2285 miles. . . . There are some nifty double-play combinations in the National League, with Durocher and Critz at Cincinnati; English and Hornsby at Chicago; Thewissen and Thompson of the Phils, and Gelbert and Frisch at St. Louis.

angle and the international tennis angle, there will be an international polo angle, in case you are interested. The British are coming over to whack the ball about a bit in an effort to lift the championship from America. They will be lucky, according to the consensus of expert opinion, if they do not fall off their horses.

Mugg About to Tee Up

MOST important of all, however, is the fact that Gus H. Mugg, who put his lugs away forever last October after taking a 112, is beginning to prow the house with a queer look on his face. Somebody told him the other day that the new and improved ball is a pipe to hit. He'll be in there again any day now, trying to keep out of the sand and water. Just another of the "hounds of spring." It's on the way.

Rich Awards Spur Don In Try For World's Auto Speed Record

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. March 1. (AP)—Laurels more substantial than fleeting fame wait Kaye Don if he shatters the world's auto speed records here this month.

First there is the $5,000 Wakefield trophy, a solid gold, which has just been completed.

The trophy will be Don's if the Englishman can drive his $125,000 Silver Bullet faster than Sir Henry Segrave shot the famous Golden Arrow to the present record of 231.26 miles an hour. In addition, Don, if successful, will receive 1,000 pounds a year until his mark is beaten.

Two years have been required to complete the Wakefield trophy since it came into being January 1, 1928. During that time it has been won by Captain Malcolm Campbell of England, the late Ray Keech of Philadelphia, and Sir Henry Segrave.

Selection was made by a joint committee composed of the Royal Mint advisory committee and the committee of taste, appointed by the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths, an ancient guild. A statue of a racing figure, winged and spurred on by lightning flashes—"The Spirit of Speed"—was selected. The committee superintended each step of its construction.

Back of the trophy is a story of the revival of a fan almost forgotten. Not in more than 300 years had a casting been made in pure gold of such size, delicacy and complexity, goldsmiths discovered. A forgotten branch of the goldsmith's art had to be rediscovered.

Lord Wakefield, millionaire British sportsman, has for years been one of the world's most liberal sponsors of racing, not only of automobiles, but also of boats and airplanes. Last year he bought Segrave's famous Golden Arrow machine and placed it in a British museum.

He was formerly lord mayor of London and dreads a large lubricant factory.

DE ANN 4-H CLUB ORGANIZES

Miss Beucher, our new Home Demonstration agent, Miss Ella Posey and Lynn Smith, county agent, were at the De Ann school building Thursday, February 27, for the purpose of organizing another De Ann 4-H club for 1930.

Quite a number of new members were enrolled and most of those who were members the preceding year.

Miss Beucher explained the work to the members of different years. Mr. Smith also explained the work to be done by the boys.

The boys and girls then met and elected as their new officers: Dillard Breeding, president, Hilda Lee Willis, vice president, Mabel Breeding, secretary.

We hope to do better work this year than ever before.

We work to "make the best better."

Barrymore Triumphs As Breaker of Heads and Feminine Hearts

John Barrymore, eminent star of stage and screen, has an unusual opportunity to display his genius for characterization in "General Crack," Warner Brothers special coming to the Saenger Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

In addition to portraying the dashing title role of the mad Prince Christian, soldier and lover, in this vivid tale of romance and adventure in eighteenth century Europe, Mr. Barrymore contributes two other superb impersonations to the picture.

In the prologue to the actual story he acts the part of his father, a doddering old soldier. Later in the film he enacts the role of his father's ghost

McGraw Rebuilds Rookies In Drive for More Punch

SAN ANTONIO, March 3.—(AP)—Maybe it was the blow to John McGraw's pride caused when only four of his regulars hit better than .300 in 1928.

Whatever the cause, it prompted the Giants' ring master to do drastic things and try to rebuild two ball players. He is trying to make a catcher out of Art Veltman, an outfielder, and is trying to make an outfielder out of Sam Leslie, a first baseman.

Both of these boys came up from the minors as Grade A, slugging prospects. Since there's great blocks of room for hitters on the New York team, Sam and Art had to be worked into the lineup.

They are digging into their work with unmistakable enthusiasm. But it will take more than enthusiasm to put over two rookies performing in strange positions and in strange company.

Leslie hit .376 for Memphis of the Southern league last year and Veltman hit .32 for Bridgeport of the Eastern league.

Hoot Gibson In "Courtin' Wildcats" at New Grand

Hoot Gibson will whiz into the New Grand theatre Wednesday in "Courtin' Wildcats," a highpowered Universal all-talking action picture jammed from start to finish with laughs and thrills.

Hoot starts out as a college boy in this one, and engages in some lively studies not on the books. He finishes up by raising hi-jinks with a wild west show, courtin' a beautiful man-hating lady performer for added excitement.

The beautiful man-hater is portrayed by charming Eugenia Gilbert, and the romance between her and Hoot is of a highly original nature. It is a romance bursting with action and laughter until Hoot, in a hell-for-leather auto ride, finally tames the two-fisted girl and persuades her to "be herself."

Hoot is up to all his old exciting tricks, with a new slant to all of them and plenty of new ones thrown in. He does some hair-raising auto driving, plays tag with the police in a roadhouse raid, and unites some altogether unscheduled "wild west" into the wild west show.
